Chapter 10 – Race and Ethnic Relations (continued)

Instructions for the Week of January 31 to February 4

Hello Period 3,

So let's finish up our discussion from last week. As you'll remember from a few years back, with the killing of George Floyd and the rise of the Black Lives Matter movement, race relations in the US are still in flux. It would be fair to say we've come a long way since slavery, but clearly, we have a long way to go before we can honestly say we've achieved "liberty and justice for all." We will go forward this week with that in mind. Here are all your fun tasks for the week!

Task 1: Click "PowerPoint Notes for Race and Ethnicity" and go over slides 16 – 31. After going through this part of the presentation, I would like everyone to write two questions and make two comments about the presentation. You will upload this information to our Google Classroom page.

Task 2: Click "Text Reading and Text Assignment # 4" to find out what to read that week and the accompanying text assignment. This text assignment will be uploaded to the Google Classroom page.

Task 3: Click "Crash Course # 7: W.E.B. DuBois and Race Conflict." These short, 8 to 12-minute videos are a great way to familiarize yourself with some of the concepts we use in sociology. Just one Crash Course for this week...

Task 4: Each lecture will be accompanied by an article which will correspond to that lecture's theme. This week you are only required to read the article. No journal response is required.

Task 5: Click the link for this week's video and review. After watching the film, you will go to our Google Classroom page and upload to the Discussion Board Response. On this page I would like you to write a short, one to two-paragraph comment about the film. After that, please respond to two other student's responses. Please keep your responses to other students respectful – we don't need to agree, but let's be polite and mature in how we talk to each other...

Good job so far everybody...we have a few more holidays coming up next month...something to look forward to.

Kropf
