Instructions for the November 10, 2020 Lecture

All right people listen up:

We've got about a month left. The paper's due on the 17th. Time to dig deep people, this is where you really need to find that inner fortitude. The temptation to bail will be strong this weekend. Fight it with everything you got. If you can get the paper in and you've been keeping up with everything else, you are almost done. I'll be monitoring the email all weekend so if you have any questions don't hesitate to ask. Just like in a cross country run, I need you to sprint toward the finish, don't start walking now….OK, here's our schedule for the week:

Lecture 12. The Public Policy Process

Task 1: Read these instructions.

Task 2: Read Chapter 12 in the Heineman text (pp. 248-264)

Task 3: Watch the lecture presentations for "The Public Policy Process." This is just a general overview, we'll get to specific policies next week.

Task 4: Read the article for your journal response (The Public Interest: Fact or Fraud?). You can find the question on the link titled "Lecture / Discussion Page" highlighted in yellow. After completing the response, you will have until the date posted on the assignments page to upload it to Canvas.

Task 5: Open the link for the video and watch Requiem for the American Dream. Here Chomsky (in his last full-length documentary video) outlines the 10 principles of concentration of wealth and power. This one will really make you think. With all the problems in the U.S. How did we get here?

Task 6: Click the link titled "Discussion Board Question and Peer Responses for Video Presentation" and answer the question that I have posted in approximately one paragraph or so. Wait for other students to put their responses and then pick two students to respond to. The deadline for these responses will be posted on the Canvas assignments page. Don't be late….

OK, that's it from me. Stay strong, stay focused, I'm here if you need me just send me an email. Two more policies to look at in the weeks ahead before we wrap things up.

See ya!
