

Instructions for Lecture Five

What's up peeps!

There are three detours we take this semester from the comparative gov textbook and this week is the first. It's necessary I think to take a deeper dive into some of the other areas of the world to get some real-life perspective. So, this week we'll check out our long-time neighbors Latin America. The initial focus will be on the basics; history, culture, geography...but we would be remiss if we ignored U.S. involvement in the region (the good and the bad), and how the colonial experience has shaped the countries there.

Lecture 5. Other World Regions: Latin America

Task 1: Read these instructions! (even if you're tired of it).

Task 2: Read Chapter 5 in the Weatherby text (pp. 147 – 194)

Task 3: Watch the lecture presentation on "Other World Regions: Latin America." Remember to take breaks so you don't pass out!

Task 4: Read the article for your journal response. You can find the question on the link titled "Lecture / Discussion Page" highlighted in yellow. After completing the response, you will have until the date posted on the assignments page to upload it to Canvas.

Task 5: Open the link for the video and watch.

Task 6: Go to our Canvas page and click the link titled "Discussion Board for Lecture One" and answer the question that I have posted in approximately one to two-paragraphs. Wait for other students to put their responses and then pick two students to respond to. The deadline for these responses will be posted on the Canvas assignments page. Don't be late....

This ends the first part of course "A Framework for Understanding Comparative Politics." We can now move on to the next phase which the text identifies as "Political Systems and How They Work." Easy peasy...

Later gators,

Kropf
