

Instructions for Lecture Eleven

Well My Friends,

Time for a new unit! It's time to get "contemporary." Yes, we will now look at a few contemporary ideologies starting with feminism and ecologism (referred to in the U.S. as "environmentalism" – your textbook authors are Brits). Both of these ideologies have a longer lineage than is commonly understood, so it's hard to call them contemporary. But most scholars talk about them as emerging in the late 20th century, typically around the 1960s / 70s. Still, they probably go back centuries and have animated philosophical discussions as they've evolved. I've combined them (there's 4 total) to save time, but I encourage you to dig deeper on your own if any of these ideologies seem appealing. Here's what you've been waiting for: Your tasks!

Lecture 11. Feminism and Ecologism

Task 1: Read these instructions (why not?)

Task 2: Read Hoffman and Graham, Chapters 14 and 16, pp. 305 – 334; 356 – 377.

Task 3: Click the link on my website or the Canvas "Modules" page titled "Lecture Eleven Presentation" and watch the lecture for this evening. (These ones are a little longer...take breaks, drink some coffee, slap your face a couple times)

Task 4: Read the article for your journal response. You can find the question on the link titled "Lecture / Discussion Page" highlighted in yellow. After completing the response, you will have until the date posted on the assignments page to upload it to Canvas.

Task 5: Open the link for the video and watch.

Task 6: On the Canvas "Modules" page down to the link titled "Discussion Board: Lecture Eleven." Then answer the question that I have posted in approximately one to two paragraphs or so. Wait for other students to put their responses and then pick two students to respond to. The deadline for these responses will be posted on the Canvas assignments page. Don't be late....

There's 2 more to talk about, and we'll hit those up next week. I'm about to get hard at work on your papers. Give me a couple weeks. I'll make sure you have enough time to fix things up before you turn them in again in May...

Stay outta trouble!

Kropf

Hey girl.

This was supposed to be a low-key seminar about Julia Kristeva and the semiotic, but it's devolved into some dude academically filibustering for three hours a week and mansplaining poststructuralist feminism like I'm some sort of chump.
