

Instructions for Lecture Thirteen

Folks, we made it to May,

So, we're almost there. If you include tonight's lecture, there's 3 left. By now, everybody should have their paper back with the corrections so make sure to get that done so you can upload it one more time on the 13th. As with the contemporary ideologies, we'll be blocking up two ideas tonight, which can make for a long week. Our last unit deals with contemporary ideas, so we'll discuss 5, starting with civil disobedience (usually acceptable) and political violence (usually not). But why? The gray area in between the two is typically the most interesting. Here is you week's breakout:

Lecture 13. Civil Disobedience and Political Violence

Task 1: Read these instructions (for punishment)

Task 2: Read Hoffman and Graham, Chapters 19 and 20, pp. 422 – 464.

Task 3: Click the link on my website or the Canvas "Modules" page titled "Lecture Thirteen Presentation" and watch the lecture for this evening. (will the prerecorded lectures ever stop!?!).

Task 4: Read the article for your journal response. You can find the question on the link titled "Lecture / Discussion Page" highlighted in yellow. After completing the response, you will have until the date posted on the assignments page to upload it to Canvas.

Task 5: Open the link for the video and watch.

Task 6: On the Canvas "Modules" page down to the link titled "Discussion Board: Lecture Thirteen." Then answer the question that I have posted in approximately one to two paragraphs or so. Wait for other students to put their responses and then pick two students to respond to. The deadline for these responses will be posted on the Canvas assignments page. Don't be late....

We are coming down to the wire. Next week we'll look at human rights and difference and after that the concept of global justice. I'm pretty pooped and looking forward to the break.

See ya!

I RECOMMEND WE ALL MEET UP AT (X)
LOCATION TO CAUSE CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE
AND ACCELERATE OUR INEVITABLE REVOLUTION

Disobedience, in the eyes of any one who has read history, is [hu]man's original virtue. It is through disobedience that progress has been made, through disobedience and through rebellion.
