

Instructions for Lecture Six

Hello Comrades!

Whoops. Wrong salutation to begin a discussion on conservatism! Well, as with liberalism, conservatism is filled with people who might not actually be in complete control of the concept. It's good to see liberalism as a kind of starting point (as when western Europe was sorting out the Enlightenment) and each of our following concepts we look at reactions to the rise of the liberal ideology. I think the ideologies that follow will be easier to understand if we approach things that way. Also, keep geography in mind this week (i.e. the Bay Area liberal 'bubble'). Keep an open mind, you might learn some things about conservatism that make a lot of sense! OK people, here before you: THE TASKS! (cue maniacal laughter).

Lecture 6. Conservatism

Task 1: Read these instructions (aaarrrrggh!)

Task 2: Read Hoffman and Graham, Chapters 9, pp. 193 – 211.

Task 3: Click the link on my website or the Canvas "Modules" page titled "Lecture Six Presentation" and watch the lecture for this evening. (Must I?)

Task 4: Read the article for your journal response. You can find the question on the link titled "Lecture / Discussion Page" highlighted in yellow. After completing the response, you will have until the date posted on the assignments page to upload it to Canvas.

Task 5: Open the link for the video and watch.

Task 6: On the Canvas "Modules" page down to the link titled "Discussion Board: Lecture Six." Then answer the question that I have posted in approximately one to two paragraphs or so. Wait for other students to put their responses and then pick two students to respond to. The deadline for these responses will be posted on the Canvas assignments page. Don't be late....

Once you're done, four more ideologies to go. Figured out who you are yet?

See ya later gators,

Kropf
